HEY MET THE QUEEN AT BALMORAL

The Utmost Caution Taken to Guard Against Nihilists-Warm Greetings Exchanged Between the Royal Personages-Czar's Demeanor Is Cold.

Leith, Scotland, Sept. 22.—(Copyrighted, 1896, by the Associated Press.)—The Russian yachts Standard and Polar Star were sighted at the entrance of the Firth of Forth at 12:30 this morning, and the news was immediately telegraphed to the Prince of Wales, who is in charge of the arrangements for the reception of the ezar and ezarina, and who will accompany the Russian visitors to Balmoral. The Prince of Wales, the Duke of Connaught, M. de Stael, the Russian ambassador to Court of St. James Lord Rosebery and a number of high military officers arrived at the jetty from Dalmeny at 11 o'clock and were received by an escort of the Enniskillen dragoons, Rain was falling heavily, and the sky and general surroundings were most forbidding, but in spite of this enormous crowds of people lined the way to the docks and greeted the arrival of the royal party with great enthusiasm. The Prince of Wales were the uniform of the Scots dragoons. After inspecting the dragoons, the royal party joined the Duchess of Buccleuch and the Counters of Lyton and embarked on board the steamer Tantallon Castle. The steamer then proceeded down the Firth of Forth in order to meet the ezar and ezarina.

The channel fleet, which lined the Firth of Forth, saluted as the Prince of Wales and the royal party traversed the lines.

The Russian imperial yachts, on their arrival, were saluted by the fleet and immediately dropped anchor. The Tantallon Castle soon afterwards ran alongside the Standard, the latter having their majestics on board.

The Prince of Wales, the Duke of Connaught and M. de Stael went on board and welcomed the ezar and ezarina to and welcomed the czar and czarina to Leith. The greetings exchanged between the imperial travelers and the British princes were most affectionate.

The party afterwards lunched together on board the Standard.

Though the weather was far from being all that could be wished for the reeepfion, there was no mistaking the fact that the people of Leith and vicinity had turned out in great numbers, determined to give the imperial travelers a royal welcome. The whole harbor was full of welcome. The whole harbor was full of merchant vessels from all parts of the world, and they were all decked from stem to stern with bunting and placed on both sides of the water, so that after passing through the lines of powerful warships the progress of the Standard up the Firth of Forth was parade-like in the extreme.

the extreme. The precautious taken for the protection of their majesties were unprecedented, it is believed, in naval annals. Picket boats, steam launches and torpedo boats of the wordline along from the constitution of the smaller class, from the warships Majesty, Magnificent, Repulse and Reso-lation, each detachment commanded by a lieutenant, formed a complete net around the Russian boats, ostensibly to prevent the boats being crowded, but in reality to prevent any possibility to commit a dynamic or other outrage. The shore dynamite or other outrage. The shore boats were in such vast numbers on the water that there is no doubt that the precautions taken by the Pritish naval au thorities were warranted.

The precautions adopted ashore were equally thorough, although few give more than a passing thought to the alleged dynamite conspiracy supposed to have been discovered by Scotland Yard. On the Tantallon Castle, ashore, on the train which was to take their majestrain which was to take their major-ties to Balmoral, at different places along the route and about Balmoral itself were picked members of the Russian se-eret police and the most trustworthy members of the czar's Nihilist detectives. Other Russian detectives were on the Standard, and they were reinforced on landing by a picked squad of the best Scotland Yard detectives, who will re-main attached to the exar and exarina's party until they leave Great Britain. After luncheon their imperial After inhelicon their imperial majos-tics boarded the Tantallon Castle, ac-companied by the British princes, and that steamship proceeded slowly up the Firth of Forth, closely guarded by the swarm of picket boats, through the lines of the fleet, all the ships flying the Russian ensign. As the Standard passed each warship fired a salute, and the sailors manned the sides or the yards, as the case might be, with marines on parade and the bands playing the Russian national anthem.

rade and the bands playing the Russian national authem.

While the Tantallon Castle was approaching the jetty she passed between guard lines formed by two cutters from each warship in the firth. After the Tantallon Castle had passed through the lines of cutters the oars were, at another signal, dipped simultaneously and the men-of-war cutters formed up in a column astern of the steamship and followed her to the jetty. The czar and czarina landed at the jetty at exactly 11:40. As they stepped ashore the troops presented arms and the massed bands played the Russian anthem.

The czar and czarina were escorted ashore by the Prince of Wales and the Duke of Connaught and were met by a large number of field officers in full uniform. The guard of honor was composed of nicked blue jackets from the form. The guard of honor was com-posed of picked blue jackets from the fleets, while the czar's escort consisted of a detachment of the royal Scots Greys (Second dragoons), of which the czar is colonel-in-chief. A detachment of 300 policemen and a regiment of High of 300 poncemen and a regiment of High-landers lined the street leading from the jetty to the railway station, 400 yards distant. The reception room of the sta-tion was made brilliant by flags and tion was made britten by flowers, and Russian ensigns being entwined with those of Great Britain.

The train in waiting was what is known as the queen's special, a train especially for the use of her majesty and containing every convenience it is possible to place on railroad cars.

The czar wore the uniform of the Greys. He and the czarina were ushered into the reception room, where the members of the municipal council of Leith and Edinburgh were present in their full dress of office. The provost of Leith and of Edinburgh welcomed the visitors to Scotland. The czar was cold in his demeanor, but the czarina won the hearts of every one by her spontaneous geniality. The imperial party and the members of the royal family shortly afterwards left the room and entered the state carringes, which, in spite of the rain, were left open out of consideration from the pleasure which the multitude of spectators experienced in seeing the dis-tinguished Russian travelers. Escorted by the Scots Greys, they traversed the gaily decorated and troop-lined quays THE YACHTS BEARING THEIR gaily decorated and troop-lined quays and streets for over a mile. Instead of entering the queen's special train at the railroad station, according to make the railroad station. railroad station, according to program, the imperial party was escorted on board the train at the junction of the Brighton road.

The extraordinary arrangements to prevent injury to the royal guests created a had impression. While everybody was in holiday attire and the streets were profusely decorated, soldiers, detectives and police, with special Russian detectives, were or every turn. Every foot of the railway tracks from Leith to Ballater was guarded and constant search of the nearby ed, and constant search of the nearby neighborhood was kept up prior to and during the trip of their majesties through ARRIVAL AT BALMORAL. Ballator, Sept. 22.—The queen's special Ballator, Sept. 22.—The queen's special train bearing the czar and czarina and the members of the English family who accompanied it arrived here at 7:05 o'clock this evening. After a formal reception by the municipal authorities they entered an open state carriage, escorted by the Scots Greys, and drove to Rabayest. Bartires were lighted on corted by the Scots Greys, and drove to Balmoral. Bonfires were lighted on the mountain peak. Arriving on the grounds at Balmoral, the servants of the castle and the soldiers led the pro-cession with flaming torches. Three other bonfires on the neighboring peaks illuminated the mountain side with a glare of light. Balmoral was reached thus without any incident.

The imperial party was received at

The imperial party was received at the door of the castle by the Prince of Wales and queen, the bagpipes meantime sounding a shrill welcome, the torches carried by the servants being thrust high in the air, accompanied by the loud cheering of all the attendants. Before the Rusisan party disappeared within doors the torch-bearers marched past them in single file.

SENATOR BUTLER WAS A GALLER.

Upon the Candidate-Mr. Bryan Looks Vigorous and Healthy-He Attended Divine Services. Speaks at Dover,

Washington, Sept. 20.—Candidate William J. Bryan spent Sunday in Washington as the guest of C. T. Bryde at his residence on Capitol hill. Mr. Bryan left the city by the Pennsylvania road at 10 o'clock tonight for Baltimore, This course was necessary in order that he might eatch the 6:10 train from that city tomorrow which will enable him to reach Dover, Dal., in time to speak at 1 o'clock temorrow afternoon. He was accompanied by National Committeeman Josephus Daniels of North Carolina and by Gen. Kennett, the chairman of the Delaware state committee, and John Salishary of the reception committee from Delaware.

appointed to escort him into the state. Mr. Bryan had a refreshing night's rest after his week's work and slept until late this morning. He looks remarkably vigorous and healthy. His voice is again in good trim. After a late breakfast the candidate, escorted by Dr. Rateliffe, the officiating minister and accompanied by Mr. Bryde and Mr. Daniels, attended the New York Avenue Presbyterian church. Returning from service, Mr. Bryan spent the remainder of the day in rest and conversation with callers. Among those who saw Mr. Bryan were Senator Butler. chairman of the populist executive committee, and Mr. Edgerton, secretary of the committee, James L. Morris, the assistant treasurer of the national committee, Capt. Miller and Maj. Briscoe of the local reception commutee. Representative McMillin of Tennessee and Commissioner of Indian Affairs Browning. Sen-ator Tillman of South Carolina, who is campaigning in Pennsylvania, came ever from Philadelphia for a conference with Mr. Bryan and those at headquarters here, but he left before Mr. Bryan had returned from an evening ride.

A hundred from an evening ride.

A hundred or more persons came in during the day and evening to pay their respects to the candidate, but few of them saw him. A crowd of curiosity seekers gathered in front of the residence at different times during the day and cheered lustily on the Nebraskan's ap-pearance. After sundown tonight Mr. Bryan, accompanied by Mr. Norris, Senator Butler, Mr. Edgerton and his host, Mr. Bryde, went for a drive about the city. It was dark and very few persons recognized those in the carriages as they drove about the streets. There were no conferences about the house during the day more than that of the chairman and secretary of the populist executive committee. The leaders expressed the opinion that the silver sentiment was grow-ing every day and that it was not possible to stem the tide. Senator Butler said

Mr. Bryan was very much satisfied and

BRYAN IN BALTIMORE.

He Arrived There Last Night-Goes to Dover This Morning,

Baltimore, Sept. 20.—Candidate William J. Bryan arrived in this city shortly before midnight and went to the Carrollton hotel. Mr. Bryan couldn't give his full itinerary tonight. He speaks at Dover, Del., tomorrow at 1 o'clock and in the evening will address a weather. in the evening will address a meeting in Wilmington. The residents of Washin the evening will address a meeting in Wilmington. The residents of Washington Park, N. J., will listen to him the next day and he will speak at night in Philadelphia. Wednesday he will be in New Jersey and at night in Brooklyn. Tom which place he will go to Boston. On the 25th he passes through Springfield and Worcester, Mass., making short speeches at each place. That night he makes two speeches in Boston, one on the common and the other in Mercy hall. He will be the guest of George Fred Williams at Dedham, and on Saturday morning leaves for Bath, Me., to visit the vice presidential nominee, where he remains over Sunday. This itinerary is however, subject to change at any time. rice presidential nominee, where he remains over Sunday. This itinerary is, however, subject to change at any time. Mr. Bryan could have left Washington at 8:50 tomorrow morning and arrived in Dover one hour and ten minutes before the time he was advertised to speak, but National Committeeman Richard R. Kenney of Delaware, who came to Washington to act for the Dover people, insisted on Mr. Bryan leaving for that city tonight, via Baltimore, and nothing was said about the train leaving Washington tomorrow, Mr. Bryan is thus, in a measure, deprived of a night's rest, as he is obliged to rise at 5 a. m. in order to catch the Dover train. Mr. Bryan explained to the committee that he was in need of rest, but it was of no avail. On Mr. Bryan's arrival at the Carrollton in this city he appeared in avail. On Mr. Bryan's arrival at the Carrollton in this city he appeared in good spirits and seemed refreshed by his short rest in Washington.

BRYAN AT FREDERICKSBURG.

He Spoke at the Monument of Washington's Mother.

Fredericksburg, W. Va., Sept. 19.—In an ordinary coach of the Richmond, Fredericksburg and Potomac railway, W. J. Bryan continued his trip through Virginia this morning, He left Rich-mond at 7 o'clock en route for Washing-ton, At Milford Mr. Bryan attempted to make a short address, but the train pulled out before the crowd quieted. Mr. Bryan spoke as follows at Mary Washington's monument:

"Ladies and Gentlemen—Fredericks-burg is a small city, but is rich in inci-dents of great historic value. Here the women of America have reared a monuwomen of America have reared a monu-ment to Mary, the mother of George Washington. (Great applause.) I am glad to stand on this spot. I am glad to feel the influence which surrounds her grave. In a campaign, especially in a campaign like this, there is bitterness and sometimes abuse levelled against the candidate for public office but, my friends, the mother is the candidate for the affections of all mankind, against whom no true man can utter a word of the affections of all mankind, against whom no true man can utter a word of abuse, (Applause.) There is one name "mother" which never is found on the tongue of the slanderer; in her presence all criticism is silent. The painter has with his brush transferred the landscape to the canvas so that you can almost believe that the trees and grasses are real, rather than imitations. The painters have transferred to the canvass the form of the maiden until its beauty and purity almost speak forth, but this is one picture which no painter ever has been picture which no painter ever has been able faithfully to portray and that is the picture of a mother holding in her arms her babe. (Great applause.) Within the shade of this monument, reared to her, who in love and loyalty represents the mother of each. I bow in humble reverence to motherhood. (Great applause.)
"I am told in this county were fought more battles than in any county of like size in the world; there fell more dead and wounded than ever fell on a similar space in all the history of the world. space in all the history of the world. Here opposing lines were drawn ap face to face. Here opposing armies met and stared at each other and then sought to take each other's lives; but all those scenes have passed away and those who met in deadly array now meet and com-mingle here as friends. (Applause.) Here the ploughshare has been made out of the swords, and spears have been converted into pruning hooks and people learn war no more. Here the bands on either side stir up the flagging zeal with notes that thrill the hearts of men. The two bands are now component parts o one great band and as that band in the lead plays 'Yankee Doodle,' and 'Dixie,' behind it follow the war-scarred veterans who were the blue and the warsearred veterans who were the grey scarred veterans who were the grey, each vieing with the other in the effort to make this the grandest and greatest of all nations on God's foot-stool. (Great applause.) I am glad to visit this historic place. Here George Washington once came and threw a silver dollar across the river, but remember, my friends, that when he threw that dollar across the river, but remember, my friends, that when he threw that dollar across the river, it lit, fell and remained on American soil. (Applause.) They thought it was a great feat then, but we have developed so rapidly in the last hundred years that we have financiers now who can leave George Washington's achievements far behind. We have financiers who have been able to throw gold dollars all the way across the Atgold dellars all the way across the At lantic and then bring them back by an issue of bonds. (Great applause.) Would you believe it, my friends, that a silver dollar which was good enough to be handled by the Father of his country, is not so mean a thing as to excite the contempt of many of our so-called finan-ciers? (Cries of 'No, no.') Well it is. (Great applause.) People can have just as good a dollar as they want because dollars are creatures of law and you can determine the purchasing power of a dollar when you determine the number of dollars. If you want them dear make them scarce and they will be dear. If our dollars are not good enough now, when a dollar will buy 100 bushels of oats. (A voice: 'We don't want that kind of a dollar.') If anybody here has been selling farm products and complaining because they are not cheap enough, you can make them cheaper if you vote the republican ticket this fall.'
